MARKET INERT AND LIFELESS

Union Pacific Advanced and Was Less Effected By the Reaction.

EFFECT OF THE MOVEMENT

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, February 21.—There were conspicuous movements in a few isdividual stocks to-day, but the general mass of the market was inert and life less. The fact that the few socks which moved widely in opposite directions seem, ed to hold the general level practically suspended. Union Pacific continuent to get, vance and was less affected by the later reaction than other stocks. Rumors in circulation of an intended distribution of a seeipt dividend to dispose of a new preferred stock issue, although it met with direct denial from official sources, had an influence on the demand for the stock. There was a concerted demand also for the stocks in the Wabash group, led by Wabash preferred.

These movements had one sympathely officer on the general list until the continued liquidation in Consolidated Gas began to disturb speculative sentiment. This stock fell an extreme nine points under persistent offerings, induced by the fixing of an 80-cent rate for gas by the State Gas Commission. Reading also was inclined to be heavy throughout.

The bank statement failed to show any of the anticipated increase in cash, the loss of $2.27.800 serving to make up more than the discrepancy in last was statement from the known movement of money. The sagging tendency becam: lightly more pronounced after the apparance of the bank statement, and the marke. closed dull and heavy. Total sales of bonds, par value, $1,50,00.

Major A. S. Lanier, former assistant clerk of the commission, and one of the parties to the controversy, has sent Chairman Byrd a list of the witnesses he desires to have summoned. He desires Mr. A. IN POLITICAL MEETING

Big Fight Between Brownlow and H. Clay Evans for State Control.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BRISTOL, TENN., February 24.—The fight between H. Clay Evans and Congressman W. P. Brownlow for State control of the Republican party in Tennessee was anaugurated at Jonesboro, the home of Brownlow to-day, when a mass convention assembled to select delegates to the Republican State Convention.
The scenes in the courthouse were very exciting, and when it came to the question of who should be seated as chairman of the meeting, the Brownlow man, or the Evans man, revolvers and knives were drawn and many people fled from the building in dismay, some of them leaping through second story windows. The Evans crowd captured the courthouse, however, after quiet had been restored by armed deputy sheriffs, and Evans delegates were elected.
This did not end the fight, as the friends of Brownlow held another convention and elected delegates and instructed them for Asbury Wright for Governor.
The friends of Evans denounced Brownlow's managers for having run a special train to Jonesboro to carry a delegation of yeterajis from the National Soldiers' Home at Johnson City, who, it was contended, had no right to participate in the convention.
